EAA 430 FLYER

The President's Message

Volume 5 Issue 6

ABOUT AS GOOD AS IT GETS

Our first summer meeting and picnic was a rousing success. The day was warm with a light breeze with just enough high clouds to provide a little shade. Alan Barnard stepped up as a pinch hitter to fill us in on the up-coming Northwest EAA Fly-In. He also made a good case for serving as a volunteer at the event.

Following the meeting, Jim Cone put on his chef's hat and broiled burgers to perfection. In addition to the burgers and all the fixings, a wide variety of salads, beans, deviled eggs, and scrumptious deserts were laid out. We settled in for a delicious meal and pleasant conversation. Of course the conversation mostly revolves around airplanes. My son maintains no group is as single-minded about their passion as pilots are. I suspect he is right.

As we ate and socialized, a Harmon Rocket landed and several of us naturally went to have a look. The pilot and passenger had arrived from Boise in less than 2 ½ hours to check out an RV for sale in Sequim. As they went about their business, we were treated to an aerobatics display. Dan Forrest in his RV, flying first with Trent Sommer and later with Jerry Tonini gave us our own private airshow. The rest of us sat in a row, like birds on a wire, sipping coffee and munching cookies as we watched a few other planes come and go. Someone suggested we should have large cards with numbers 1 through 10 we could hold up to rate landings. Nothing like a little pressure to make things interesting. About then a formation of three Diamond Point Swifts made a low approach just to make us envious.

The Boise visitors eventually sealed the deal on the RV and prepared to depart. The pilot of the Rocket was asked if we would see a dramatic departure to which he responded "You know, I just can't help it." Shortly thereafter he demonstrated that the plane is aptly named a Rocket. After accelerating in ground effect he pulled up in what more closely resembled a trajectory than a climb.

It is hard to think of a better way to spend a nice afternoon. Good friends, good food, good conversation, good weather, airplanes, airplanes, and airplanes. It just doesn't get any better.

OLD BUSINESS-

President Johnson reported on the wind indicator. Gary will be edging the segmented circle today. Discussion followed surrounding the status of moving the wind sock. President then reported on attending a breakfast with the local ham radio group with discussion on the emergency plan. He reported that Jim Buck's power point presentation on potential disasters will be presented in the Rake Harbor room at the Port Angeles Library on June 15th at 19:30.

NEW BUSINESS

Donna Sommer reported on Laura Dunham working toward going into an aviation career. She's joined the 99's and is starting college at Big Ben. Discussion followed on scholarship possibilities. President Johnson stated that a scholarship suggestion would need to be addressed at the regular Chapter meeting. President asked Donna what she would recommend. Donna suggested possibly $100.00 toward books or something similar. Donna then gave a brief background on Laura. President Johnson stated that we need to explore how any scholarship monies would be applied. Donna will bring the subject at the June Chapter meeting.

The July Board of Directors Meeting will again be held at Old Mill Cafe in Carlsborg on July 13th at 09:00. There being no other new business, the meeting was adjourned at 09:52 A.M.

EAA YOUNG EAGLES NEARING 1.25 MILLION FLOWN

From EAA News May 25, 2006

The volunteer pilots and support personnel who have made the EAA Young Eagles program the most successful youth aviation education program in history will be specially recognized for their efforts over the next several months, as the program reaches its next goal of 1.25 million young people flown. The program will celebrate this next milestone at EAA AirVenture Oshkosh July 24-30. In the weeks leading to the event, EAA will hold drawings to reward the volunteers who provide the tens of thousands of free demonstration flights that introduce aviation to young people.

“The more than 40,000 pilots and equal number of ground-based volunteers who make Young Eagles so successful can be very proud of their achievements, and we are very, very proud of them,” said Steve Buss, Young Eagles executive director. “As we approach the next significant milestone for Young Eagles, we wanted to put a spotlight on these volunteer efforts.”

“In a program as large and successful as Young Eagles, the thousands of people who make it work at the local level are the true stars, as they are preparing the next generation of flight,” Buss said. “While we know they are involved because they want to make a difference by giving back to aviation, EAA wants to step forward with extra recognition for them as we reach another impressive milestone in this program.”

The EAA Young Eagles program began at the 1992 EAA fly-in convention with an initial goal of flying 1 million young people by the 100th anniversary of flight on Dec. 17, 2003. That number was reached in October 2003, with more than 200,000 young people flown since that achievement.

The effect of Young Eagles is felt throughout the aviation community, where previous Young Eagles are now part of every major collegiate aviation program, as well as in flight training in all of the nation’s military service academies. In addition, some Young Eagles from the program’s initial years are already beginning their own aviation careers as pilots, instructors and maintenance professionals.

“Aviation can and will continue to see the effect of the Young Eagles program in the numbers, but those volunteers involved know the reward from the smiles, the excitement and the enthusiasm they encounter from each Young Eagle,” Buss said. “Spring is a great time to fly Young Eagles, so be part of reaching our goal and help make kids’ dreams come true by flying Young Eagles.”

Harrison Ford, EAA Young Eagles Chairman

Mr. Ford earned his pilot’s certificate in 1996 and joined EAA. Since then he has also earned a several additional ratings including seaplane, rotorcraft (helicopters) and an instrument rating. He also owns several aircraft including a deHavilland Beaver and Bell helicopter.

“Young Eagles gives kids a view of the world they’ve never seen before,” Ford said. “Each Young Eagle flight is an opportunity to excite kids by sharing a passion for flight and to show them that they, too, can learn the skills to participate in aviation.”

Mr. Ford has flown nearly 250 Young Eagles since becoming involved in the program in 2001.
